The minimum investment is $1000 and no maximum. At full term, the Freedom Bond and interest accrued become payable, in US$, to investors by the National Treasury of Ambazonia. Funds raised are geared towards the de-annexation and economic recovery of Ambazonia. These funds also cover diplomacy, peace and security on fatherland Ambazonia.

Collateral to Investment

Upon taking office in Buea, the interim government or a future government of Ambazonia shall enact a Public Debt Finance Bill, which among other things, assigns no less than 50% of personal remittances to Ambazonia towards repaying these Freedom Bonds. Personal remittances mean money transfers in cash received by resident households and any compensation of employees in Ambazonia from non-resident households, entities or persons abroad. Remittances in 2018 are at $60m, taken proportionately as 20% of all reported remittances to La Republique du Cameroun.

Political Background

On 1 October 2017, the people of Ambazonia declared the restoration of their suppressed independence and statehood from illegal occupation and annexation by La Republique du Cameroun or French Cameroun. The celebration of the event was violently attacked by French Cameroun troops and helicopter gunships. It left hundreds of Ambazonian people killed, maimed and imprisoned. This catastrophe occurred 56 years after La Republique du Cameroun – a protégé of France by treaty since December 26, 1959 – improperly exploited the outcome of a plebiscite to annex the British Southern Cameroons in 1961 by amending its constitution into what she called a federal constitution and subsequently in 1972 abolishing the federation through a fraudulent referendum before re-emerging as La Republique du Cameroun in 1984 with Ambazonia tagged onto herself as mere provinces. The federal constitution was never ratified by the British Southern Cameroons parliament in Buea and neither is there any treaty of union with La Republique du Cameroun. From the staged 1972 referendum onwards, French Cameroun paved the way for massive expropriation of timber and mineral wealth from Ambazonia by French companies.

This annexation violates United Nations Article 76(b), United Nations Resolutions 1514(xv), 1541(xv) and 1608(xv) and as well as Article 4(b) of the African Union Constitutive Act. Ambazonians, stoical in nature, have in petitions to the United Nations, African Union, and ACHPR (<http://caselaw.ihrda.org/doc/266.03/>) protested their subjugation and cultural annihilation. Meanwhile, French speaking Cameroun has courted and entangled Great Britain (UN Trust Territory Administrator in Southern Cameroons) by joining the British Commonwealth and signing lucrative contracts with British energy companies, in efforts to forestall international outrage over the annexation of Ambazonia. More recently France has intensified political tension by lecturing to partition Ambazonia between regions of French Cameroun. Ambazonians seek to restore their political status as an independent nation and to freely pursue their economic, social and cultural development.
